AMERICAN DANTE BIBLIOGRAPHY

May, 1896–May, 1908

(Supplementing the American Dante Bibliography compiled by T. W. Koch and published in the Fifteenth Annual Report of the Dante Society.)

COMPILED BY ETHEL DANE ROBERTS

NOTE. In continuing the bibliography begun by Mr. Koch I have followed in the main the lines laid down by him, with certain exceptions. I have made no attempt to include anything published outside of the United States, as in Canada, Mexico, or South America; consequently I have not included articles by or about American writers in foreign periodicals. I have chosen to enter reviews of books under the name of the reviewer when obtainable, whether the books reviewed were of American or foreign origin. Unsigned reviews I have noted under the book in question. I can hardly hope, however, to have included every unsigned review that has appeared.

As far as newspaper material is concerned, I have included all that I have found entered in the Cornell and Harvard catalogues and in the foreign bibliographies consulted, together with any other references of the sort that have come to my notice. I have made no systematic attempt to go farther than this.

With these reservations I have endeavored to include everything published in the United States since Mr. Koch's bibliography was printed. I am, of course, particularly indebted to the catalogue of the Dante collection at Cornell and to the various lists published by the Dante Society, which include the catalogue of the Harvard collection.
